Borowsky Reports:

Professional Style Pays For Yankees

By BEN BOROWSKY
Courier-Times Sports Editor

NEW YORK — Almost 70,000 persons paid their way into Yankee Stadium yesterday. Most of them came to see the Yankees do it. And they did.

In real professional style the Yankees defeated the Braves as the World Series of 1957 got under way.

Casey Stengel will stick with a southpaw today, sending Bobby Shantz to the mound. Fred Haney counters with Lew Burdette, the righthander best known for the "spitball episode" earlier this season.

A Day's Work

Another 70,000 persons are expected to jam the Stadium today and they'll probably be chanting for more action. Yesterday's game was as "routine" as they come.

Except for one brief moment when Whitey Ford walked two batters to start the sixth the Yankees were in complete command. It seemed as though they could score enough runs to win any time they wanted.

Casey surprised by using Gerry Coleman and Andy Carey. I guess he wanted a little more "poise" in his lineup. The pair came through for Casey with three base hits.

When Mickey Mantle beat out a bunt in the eighth inning, cries of "phony," "liar," "there's nothing wrong with him," went up all over the ball park.

San Marino Blockaded By Italian Troops

SAN MARINO (UP)—A total blockade of this tiny state by Italian troops threatened today to starve the Communists out of the government palace.

Communist leaders defied the threat and said they would not submit to a provisional government set up in a half-built factory by Christian Democrats.

Chief Stewart Arrested, Charges Reprisal By JP

Released On $3,000 Bail For Perjury

Who's move next?

That's the $64,000 question in Bristol Township today as the municipality's police chief and justice of peace resumed their "fuedin' and fightin'."

Yesterday, Police Chief John R. Stewart was re-arrested on a two-year-old perjury charge which supposedly had been withdrawn. The action came less than 48 hours after Stewart had J. P. Earl B. Dougherty arrested Monday night on criminal libel charges.

Stewart yesterday was released on $3,000 bail to await a hearing next Thursday afternoon before Dougherty in Edgely. Dougherty, meanwhile, is free on $1,000 bail, awaiting a hearing before JP John Melvin, Fallsington, on Stewart's charges.

JP Denies Accusation

Charges and countercharges were tossed around yesterday. Chief Stewart called the action, "reprisal" for the chief's charge against Dougherty on Monday.

Dougherty, meanwhile, scoffed off talk of reprisal and said he had the police chief re-arrested at the suggestion of Dr. Glenn W. Bricker, Levittown, when he (Dougherty) learned the charges had never been dropped.

The charges originally were filed by Dr. Bricker on July 27, 1955. The chief was arrested at that time and several hearing dates set. But all were postponed. In February, 1956, Dr. Bricker (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Hang Negro In Effigy At Central

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—About 50 white students walked out of Central High School today and burned an effigy figure of a Negro student in an organized demonstration against integration.

A heavily reinforced troop guard promptly broke up the demonstration, dispersed the small crowd, and erected blockades to seal off the street in front of the high school.

The demonstration fell far short of the "mass walkout" of hundreds of white students which segregationist groups, including the so-called "Central High mothers' league," had sought to organize.

The vast majority of the nearly 2,000 students enrolled at Central High were sitting quietly in classes. School officials had warned in advance that anyone participating in the walkout would automatically be expelled.

The demonstration took place about 9:10 a.m., less than an hour after nine Negro students had been escorted into the school under the heaviest armed guard since the first day of integration last Wednesday.

Tough paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division were back on the job, reinforcing members of the federalized Arkansas National Guard.

The sharp step-up in troop strength in and around the school reflected the concern of military commanders over efforts by teenage white agitators to stir violence against the Negro students inside the school.

At 7:45 a.m. c.s.t., an hour before school began, a detail of 120 paratroopers marched up to the blond brick building. It was the first time paratroopers had been on daytime sentry duty since National Guardsmen took over that task Tuesday. The paratroopers wore sun-tan uniforms instead of combat fatigues and helmets.

Sixty of them, armed only with billy clubs, took up stations inside the school, where a force of eight National Guardsmen Wednesday was unable to prevent several minor racial incidents.

The other sixty, armed with carbines without bayonets, were stationed at various entrances and on the steps to the schools.

National Guardsmen were still assigned to the job of walking patrol along the sidewalks adjacent to the building. About 20 Guardsmen were on such patrols this morning.

Wednesday there had been only (Continued on Page 3, Col. 8)

Bristol Plans '276th' Fete

Bristol this month will celebrate its 276th Anniversary in a gay, gala fashion recalling the big celebration in the borough last year.

The Mill Street Fair, tradition revived last year for the 275th, will be Thursday to Saturday, Oct. 24 to 26, and the celebration will spread to the Bristol schools, under tentative plans.

"Get into the spirit 'of '76," meaning 276, will be the watchword.

Mill Street once again will be dressed in Colonial style, and be the scene of dancing, entertainment and a clothesline art exhibit.

Backed by the Mill Street Bristol Business Center with other interested groups and citizens, the program will be under the direction of Harry G. Hollenbach, owner of Bucks County Sound and Recording Laboratories.

A highlight will be a Halloween parade through the town on Thursday, sponsored by the Bristol Lions Club.

Carmen Mignoni, parade chairman, said adults as well as children will be invited to march in the parade, Oct. 24, and compete for prizes. They will be judged from a reviewing stand on Mill Street.

Ike To Keep Troops Until Faubus Acts

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that federal troops will have to remain in Little Rock unless Gov. Orval E. Faubus changes his stand on school integration and gives satisfactory and unequivocal assurance that law and order will be maintained.

There also must be assurance, the President said, that federal court orders on integration will not be obstructed.

The President said that for the time being he sees no possibility of assuring continued attendance of Negro students at Little Rock's Central High School without keeping federal troops there.

He said he thought Faubus was mistaken in what he was doing. He said Faubus was committing a disservice to the city of Little Rock and the state of Arkansas.

Expresses Views

Eisenhower expressed his views at his first news conference since the Little Rock crisis developed.

He deplored having to send federal troops to Little Rock in the first place. He said the use of such tactics was not good for the locality, not good for the troops and certainly not representative of America except in the most extreme cases where force was absolutely necessary to uphold the orders of a court.

To permit unchecked defiance of a court order, Eisenhower said, would be to invite chaos and anarchy.

He counseled a display of patience and tolerance on both sides of the integration issue. And he called on citizens to remember America as well as their own private prejudices.

At the outset of his conference, the President was told that the situation in Little Rock seemed to have reached an impasse. He was then asked what the prospects were for some sort of agreement (Continued on Page 3, Col. 8)

Hurled From Car

Lower Bucks Girl Killed In Freak Mishap

A William Tennent High School girl senior died yesterday from injuries received in a freak automobile accident following a girls' hockey game at that school, yesterday afternoon.

The girl was thrown to the macadam parking lot in back of the school when the car, operated by her brother, a junior at the school, made a sudden stop. She had been standing, with the door open, on the floor of the car's passenger side.

The victim was Virginia Polles, 17, daughter of Mrs. Mary Polles, 1122 Rozel Ave., Southampton. She died shortly after she was admitted to Abington Memorial Hospital. She had suffered a fractured skull.

Four William Tennent High School athletic officials were near the scene of the tragedy, which

County Upholds Flu Shot Priority

Essential Services 1st, Public Last

"Flu priorities are a must" was the conclusion of the Asian Flu committee for Bucks County at a meeting last night in the Bucks County Health Department, Doylestown.

"It is the moral obligation of every physician in the county to use all available flu vaccine for high priority groups before any is given to the general public," advised Dr. Daniel Erhard, president of the Bucks County Medical Society.

To maintain essential services for the citizens of Bucks County, if Asian flu invades the county, the following priorities are imperative, he said.

Priorities

First: health services personnel, such as nurses, physicians, hospital employees and health workers.

Second: Protective services personnel, fire, police, key communications and transportation workers and those disabled with lung and heart diseases, elderly individuals and others in homes. The mortality rate for them is likely to be high.

Third: Education personnel, such as teachers, cafeteria workers and bus drivers.

Fourth: Essential services in industry and commerce.

Fifth: The general public, including school populations and other large groups.

The Bucks flu group embraces spokesmen from the professions and the public, including medicine, pharmacy, hospitals, schools, county and local government, parent-teacher associations and others. Physician members canvassed last night reported no cases of typical Asian flu diagnosed in the county, even though last week's sudden weather change brought increases in colds and unusual absenteeism in some communities. Conclusive diagnosis of the disease requires laboratory analysis of throat washings and blood, taking ten days.

"Protection against Asian flu requires a full dose of c.c. of vaccine under skin or in muscles according to recommendations repeated last week by federal and state health authorities and the Bucks flu group," Dr. H. Jackson Davis, director of the County Health Department, said.

Endorsement

Dr. Richard Bond, chief of staff of the Delaware Valley Hospital, today endorsed the statements by Dr. Erhard and Dr. Davis as spokesmen for the 40 osteopathic physicians on the hospital staff, as a result of an executive meeting last night.

"It will be unfortunate," Dr. Bond continued, "if persons receiving less than the standard dose recommended by health authorities and drug companies are given a false sense of security against Asian flu."

Dr. Richard Darnell, chairman of the Bucks flu group and public health committee of the Medical Society, concluded last night's meeting by urging persons with signs of a cold or gripe-like illnesses to stay at home, go to bed, call the doctor, and usually return to work if possible in a few days.

"Even if there is an epidemic of gripe-like illnesses," Dr. Davis urged that "school should be kept open so well children can remain with their usual company, lessening the number of new contacts."

Steward Arrested, Charges Reprisal

agreed to withdraw the charges.

Dougherty denying the "reprisal" claim pointed out that the warrant for Stewart's arrest was dated Sept. 28, two days before his own arrest.

The squire said the latest action resulted when Charles Lang a former constable, pressed him for payment of fees arising out of the first arrest of the chief.

Lang presented a bill for $54.45 to Dougherty. The JP said that he in turn referred the bill to Dr. Bricker and added a $15 bill for court costs.

Bricker Refuses to Pay

Bricker, in a letter dated Sept. 25, 1957, said he was not going to pay the bill. He said it was his impression the chief was to pay the court and constable costs. This was to be done if he dropped the charges, Bricker said.

Bricker's letter said Dougherty had two alternatives. One would be to pay the costs out of his own pocket. The second, Bricker's letter said, would be to consider the charges against the chief as still open.

Dougherty said he chose the latter course. After releasing the chief he showed reporters a statement signed by Dr. Bricker in February, 1956, in which the doctor agreed to drop the charges when the costs were paid.

The costs were never paid. Dougherty said, so the charges had never dropped. Actually, Dougherty said, since perjury is a felony Dr. Bricker could not withdraw the charge. This would have to be dropped by the county court on request of the district attorney, Dougherty said.

Dougherty said he had consulted the district attorney on the procedure for dropping the charges, but that he never followed through since the costs were never paid. The case was dormant until Lang pressed for payment of his fees.

In the perjury charges, Dr. Bricker accuses Chief Stewart of giving false testimony when he denied in court that he drove through a red light at Levittown Parkway and Newportville Road.

Bricker charged the chief with passing the red light. The case ended up in the county courts before Judge Edwin H. Satterthwaite. The charges were dismissed.

Criminal Libel

In the criminal libel charge filed by Chief Stewart this week, Dougherty is accused of giving "false or libelous" information to a newspaper reporter. The charge pertains to an article which appeared in the Bristol Courier and Levittown Times on August 10.

Dougherty is quoted in the article as saying that Stewart and

Cases Jump Sharply In Past 36 Hours

HARRISBURG (UP)—An estimated 10,000 persons, the majority of them school children and college students, have been hit by an "influenza type" virus in Pennsylvania this week, with a sharp upswing noted during the last 36 hours.

State Health Department officials awaited reports on virus strains under study at two laboratories before stating flatly that the virus was Asian flu.

However one department spokesman said his personal inspection of stricken students at Indiana State Teachers College led him to believe ill students there had contacted Asian flu, but he could not be certain at this time.

He said 700 of the school's 1,700 students had contacted a mild form of influenza, which generally lasted two to three days. None of the students were vaccinated against Asian flu.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said the department hoped to know definitely within a week if the flu outbreak at the college was of the Asian type. Specimens are under study by laboratory technicians.

The department ordered all county medical directors to submit complete reports of new influenza cases at noon today in an effort to pin down exactly the number of stricken persons and the spread of the disease.

The laboratory analysis, at Philadelphia Children's Hospital and the Allegheny County Hospital, was not expected for another week. Meanwhile, Malcolm Schenley, administrative officer in the department's Communicable Disease Control Division, said the state had an "acute shortage" of Asian flu vaccine.

"There just isn't enough vaccine being manufactured to go around," Schenley said.

Up to Tuesday, Pennsylvania had received 372,066 shots of vaccine for distribution to a population of more than 11 million people. Also the department has advised local health units to set up priority lists to inoculate hospital personnel, police and firemen, and other essential workers.

car which had recently been presented to him by his mother.

The girl opened the car door on the passenger's side and stood on the floor of the vehicle. Her brother started to back the car up.

Suddenly he stopped. Virginia was thrown to the pavement.

Miss Arlene Van Arsdale, hockey coach, was at the victim's side immediately. Miss Margaret Scull, school nurse, was at the scene seconds later. So were Claude Lodge, athletic director, and Richard Acker, cross-country coach.

Miss Scull was at the girl's side until the Trevese Heights Rescue Squad ambulance arrived. Then she accompanied the victim to the hospital.

Dr. Everitt McDonald, regional superintendent of Centennial Joint School District, which includes the high school, pointed out the William Tennent students are given strict regulations governing their use of the parking lot.

Both Mrs. Polles and the brother, James, were treated for shock at the hospital.

Bristol Boy Hit By Car

Four-year-old Neil Everett, of 626 Corson St., Bristol, received bruises of the forehead when a car struck him in the street near his home shortly before 6 p.m. yesterday. He was treated at Lower Bucks County Hospital.

Sgt. Anthony Esposito and Patrolman Henry Spinelli, of borough police, said Neil ran into Corson St. at Prospect St. and hit the right front fender of a car being driven north on Corson St. by Ernest O. Pearce, 50, of Cheltenham. Pearce was driving slowly, the officers said, when he was struck by a truck that blocked the street.

The accident happened a few minutes after a rear-end crash at the Route 13-Beaver St. traffic lights.

Patrolman Spinelli said William R. Whitney, 43, of 53 Gamewood Road, Goldenridge, Levittown, heading east on Route 13, had stopped for the light when his car was hit in the rear. The other car, police said, was driven by Claire Wright, 1604 River Road, Croydon. Her car had to be towed away. She will receive a traffic ticket for following too closely.

Going In Circles

By MAURY ALLEN

It sometimes takes the objective eye of a disinterested outsider to appreciate the beauty of a structure which lies in your every day view.

The Delaware River Bridge, spanning the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Turnpikes, from Edgely to Florence, N.J., is such a sight. It's difficult to grasp the impressive beauty of the concrete and steel bridge as it hovers over the splashing Delaware.

In an aesthetic bridge competition the structure was named as the second most outstanding bridge opened to traffic last year by the American Institute of Steel Construction. To help you on the $64,000 Question, the winner was the Missouri River Pipeline Suspension Bridge in Plattsmouth, Neb.

Let you know it all the time.

Football players may not know how many it takes for a baker's dozen but one particular baker may not be an expert Monday morning quarterback either.

In the window of a Levittown Shopping Center bakery is a delicious-looking cake depicting a football field. The flour gridiron has goal posts, end zones and yard stripes. Only the yard stripes run in the wrong direction.

Instead of starting with the zero yard stripe on opposite ends of the field and running to the 50 yard line at midfield, the cake starts with the 50 yard line at the end zone and runs to zero at the center of the cake.

Some Frenchman said it, "Let them eat cake." Guess that's about all that counts in this one.

Five Dollar Bills For A Dime!

A merchant was wondering one day how many people read his ad. The ad man suggested that he could put a few lines in the paper in a very hard-to-find spot and guarantee a rush of customers. The merchant was skeptical. The ad man suggested that the ad read: "From 10 to 2 on Tuesday—genuine five-dollar bills at ten cents each at Smith's—Main and Broadway."

The merchant said: "Well, sure—but I can't offer that."

The obvious answer was that every ad, no matter what its size, will attract customers and make friends in direct proportion to the interesting value or information offered to the reader.

eight soldiers—all Guardsmen—on duty inside the school. They were unable to prevent several minor racial incidents in which white teen-agers chased, crowded, pushed and otherwise heckled the six Negro girls and three Negro boys attending Central High under orders of a federal court.

Three white students were suspended for Wednesday's activities. Two of them told reporters there was an organized plan among some students to torment the Negroes in the hope they would quit school if made "miserable."

School officials meanwhile threatened to expel students involved in a reported walkout scheduled this morning. The boycott from classes was said to have been organized and encouraged by the new segregationist "mothers league" at the school, not connected with parent-teacher association groups.

The Army was reported looking into means of isolating the instigators before they accomplish their aim of causing serious trouble. School officials already have suspended three white boys as the result of inside-the-school incidents against Negro students the past two days. The events have occurred since the 101st Airborne paratroopers surrendered escort tasks to the federalized National Guard.

No Serious Harm

Schools Superintendent Virgil Blossom said his reports showed "some crowding, pushing and jeering . . . two boys were kicked . . . there was no serious physical harm to anyone."

The kicking took place, Blossom said, on the second floor in the locker room.

with Faubus and what the next step would be.

The President replied that several things could happen:

—The committee of four Southern governors who conferred here with the President Tuesday, are naturally disappointed that they could not reach the desired agreement with Faubus. But these governors are not completely hopeless and are pursuing the purpose for which their committee was established by the Southern Governors Conference.

—Federal troops could be removed when Faubus supplies satisfactory and unequivocal assurances that the orders of the federal district court to open Central High School to Negroes will not be obstructed and law and order will be maintained.

—The factual, gradual development of a peaceful situation in Little Rock in which local police could maintain control.

No Specific Purpose

The President said repeatedly that naturally the Little Rock situation stemmed from the over-all segregation issue, but that the troops were not there for the specific purpose of enforcing integration. He said the presence of the troops was needed to uphold and enforce the directive of a federal court. Without such enforcement, he said, the law and government of our forefathers would not exist.

The President made his statements at about the same time that nine Negro students were being escorted into Little Rock's Central High School under the heaviest armed guard used since the first day of integration there. Paratroopers from the 101st Airborne Division were back on the job reinforcing troops from the federalized National Guard.

News Of Talamas Death Shielded From Wife

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UP)—Relatives today shielded Mrs. Shibley Talamas from the news that her husband, an American citizen, was beaten to death this weekend by Haitian police.

Mrs. Talamas has been confined to bed since the birth of her first baby early Sunday and it was feared announcement of her husband's death would weaken her.

Instead members of the family told her Talamas was being held in prison under orders to leave Haiti.

Talamas died Sunday in police custody after being arrested as he broke the 8 p.m. curfew in a frantic search for a doctor for his wife.

Mother-To-Be Suffers Shock In Center Crash

An expectant mother from Wildwood, N.J., suffered shock yesterday afternoon after her car hit three other vehicles in the Levittown Shopping Center.

She is Mrs. B. H. Blasi, 28, driving west in the Center between the Towne Theatre and Penn Fruit market. Chief John B. Walterick and Patrolman Pat Coia, of Tullytown police, said she hit the car of Mrs. Louis F. Delago, 35, of 26 Easter Lane, Elderberry Pond, Levittown, driving south across an intersection. Mrs. Blasi's car then skidded and hit the cars of two Penn Fruit workers, the police said.

Mrs. Blasi had stopped at the stop sign but started up as Mrs. Delago's car came past, the police said. The parked cars she hit are owned by Jesse J. Burrini, 21, Viburnum Lane, Vermilion Hill, and John O. Lysinger, 43 North Park Drive, both of Levittown.

She was released after treatment for shock by a local physician.

Boehm High Pupils Take Ability Tests

Achievement and learning ability tests are being administered to all students of the Boehm High School, Yardley, in order that teachers may have the most up-to-date information on the strengths and weaknesses of each pupil they teach.

In grade 10 the Iowa Tests of Educational Development were given to learn where students rank in social studies background, in natural science background, in correctness of writing, in quantitative thinking, in reading of social studies, literary natural science material, in general vocabulary, and in use of sources of information.

Because these tests are important in evaluating how well students use what they have learned from their school courses, and what they have learned from movies, TV, books, magazines, trips, conversations at home and in many other ways, the scores will be sent home to parents as soon as the tests are marked, officials said. This should be sometime in October.

In grade 9 a similar, but less comprehensive battery of achievement tests, are scheduled to be given in October. These are the California Tests of Language, Reading, and Arithmetic.

The results of these are usually not forwarded to parents because they are more diagnostic in nature and, hence, more meaningful to the instructors. Parents, however, may, upon personal visits to the guidance counselors, receive some indication of their

Two Quints Remain Alive

TOULON, France (UP)—Three of the Christophe quintuplets died last night and early today leaving only a tiny boy and girl struggling for life in incubators at Foch Hospital.

Two doctors and several nurses maintained a 24-hour vigil over the remaining two in hopes of preserving the fragile lives for their parents who had been childless for eight years.

The hospital reported that the mother, Mrs. Camille Christophe, 28, was doing fine.

Mrs. Christophe gave birth to the quintuplets—three girls and two boys—at St. Michael Clinic yesterday. The babies, weighing about two pounds each, were rushed to Foch Hospital and placed in incubators.

Mrs. Christophe, a small woman who once was told she was sterile, had expected twins. The babies were three months premature.

Doctors refused to predict the chances for survival of the remaining two babies.

Part of Christophe's job is paying benefits to persons who have children. If all their children had survived, the Christophes, who made about $200 a month together, would have gotten another $85 a month from the government.

Middletown Plans Subdivision Law

Middletown Township Board of Supervisors would have the authority to require builders to connect new homes into existing sewage or water lines under a proposed subdivision ordinance.

The ordinance is being drawn up along the recommendations of the township planning commission. It should be ready for consideration at a public meeting next month.

Angus T. Johnson, township manager, said if city sewer and water lines are available to new housing projects the developers would either have to connect to the lines or make provisions for future connections.

Requirements

Actually the ordinance won't make too many changes in the township's requirements for subdivisions, Johnson said. The most important thing is that the proposal would establish a definite procedure for filing subdivision plans for approval. Also, with passage of the ordinance, the township would become independent of the county subdivision plan.

The ordinance would stipulate township planning commission approval of all plans. Now approval comes from the county planning commission.

But, Johnson said, the township would refer all plans to the county planning staff before approving them. Any suggestions or recommendations of the county planners would be given careful consideration.

Three Sets

Under the new ordinance, a housing developer would have to submit three sets of plans—tentative, preliminary, and final. The ordinance defines each set of plans and lists what should be included.

Johnson said the township planning commission, under the chairmanship of Walter Styer, has worked six months studying the situation and preparing recommendations.
